LOGAN AND LINCOLN.

Setting Up the Candidates for the Campaign of 1884.

New York, Jan. 3.-A very decided impression exists in some quarters that General Logan is preparing the way for his own nomination in 1884, and that he has been awakened to the possibility of a very dangerous rivalry in his own State. General Logan is credited with Already there are rumors in Washrng- the nomination of Mr. Lincoln by Genthat there will be another break in Garfield, and has always entertained the e cabinet. s rumor has been supplemented with credit him with the jealousy of Mr. Lincoln, which is now ascribed to him. At the same time it is thought not unlikely that Mr. Logan fully realizes the advantage, great or small, which Mr. Lincoln might have in certain contingencies, and he would not be slow to counteract them. He would hardly, however, suggest a method which would be likely to bring Mr. Lincoln's name into special

In that event it is thought by some of the wise men that already these Stalwart leaders have in view the bringing forward of Mr. Lancoln.

WHITTAKER.

New York, Jan. 3.-A prominent officer of the army at the Fifth Avenue Hotel was asked to day if he knew anything about the verdict of the court-martial in the Whittaker case. The officer, who had recently been in Washington, replied: "Of course I cannot speak officially, but I have pretty good reason to believe that the court sentenced Whittaker to be dishonorably dismissed from the service, to be imprisoned one year, and to pay a fine. I have heard eties connected with the church, that this was substantially the unaniald be made reason of an occasion to mous verdict of the court, and that six or seven of the members recommended that, in view of certain mitigating circumstances, the sentence of fine and imprisonment be remitted."

"Do you think the findings of the court-martial will receive the approval of the President?" the reporter asked. "Of course I cannot tell as to that.

"Did you hear what conclusions the Judge-Advocate-General reached?" "Well, I heard that he considered the evidence of Whittaker's guilt insufficient, and the matter of Whittaker's treatment by his officers and comrades at the mili-tary academy, and criticised very sharply the circumstances which led the commission of the outrage upon the colored cadet. The Judge-Advocate-General is a very thorough as well as level-headed man, and I have no doubt he has treated the subject fairly, and that his conclusions, whatever they may be, will have great weight with the President, and be applanded by all fair minded men."

HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

Washington, Jan. 3-One of Guiteau's counsel said to-day that their only hope lay in the establishment of the rule that if there was a reasonable doubt of the defendant's sanity the jury was bound to acquit. If it was held, on the contrary, that the burden of proof lay with defense, and they must establish beyond a reasonable doubt that Guiteau was insane, their case was hopeless. He had been searching for authorities, and had found that there were decisions in New Hampshire, Georgia, Mississippi, 'Alabama, Illinois, and New York courts that took the ground that the jury was bound to acquit if they had a reasonable doubt of the defendant's sanity. If the court would so instruct, and also let the expert tes-NEWARK (N. FOUND DEAD.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 3.-Residents of the town of Granville are greatly excited over the discovery of the body of George Church, a farmer, in the woods on his land. He disappeared after drinking freelp in a saloon, in the town of Granville until a late hour Friday night. Since then his friends have searched for him until to-day, with the stated result. While his townsmen believed that he was a victim to foul play, the authorities were at a loss for a motive, Church never carrying any considerable sum of money. Except several cuts in the face, there were no marks of violence on the body, and the police are of the opinion that the cuts were the result of the man's fall, and that his death was from exposure. Church leaves a family quite comfortably situated.

FIGHTING FOR LAND.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 2.—Assistant General Solicitor Melbert B. Cary, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, returned yesterday from Keokuk, Iowa, where he has been trying the suit of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway vs. The Sioux City & St. Paul railland in Northern Iowa, valued at about $1,000,000. Mr. Cary stated that the ar guments in the case have been closed, and thinks that the decision of Judges Lord and McCrary will be favorable to the Milwaukee road.

execution of Quakers on Boston Com-mon in the Seventeenth Century.

Somewhere beneath the soil of Boston Common lie the ashes of four so-called Quakers—three men and one woman—who were cast into their rude graves after they had been executed on the gallows, between the years 1659 and 1661. This death-penalty was the culmination of the successive inflictions to which Puritan legislators vainly had recourse to be rid of an intolerable plague. It was denounced upon such as, returning a fourth time after punishment and banishment, refused, even when on the gallows, to keep their lives on condition that they would not again obtrude themselves where they were so unwelcome. Their refusal to comply with this condition convinced the magistrates, who "desired their lives absent rather than their deaths present," that "they courted death and thrust themselves from us upon it."

Some readers may find relief in the fact that, even after the long trial of the patience of the magistrates, the infliction of the death-penalty was effected only by the vote of a bare majority of the court, and was most vehemently opposed by earnest remonstrances from some of the best people. Our historian, Hutchinson, rightly balances "the strange delusion the Quakers were under in courting persecution, and the imprudence of the authorities in gratifying this humor as far as their utmost wishes could carry them." One may all the more regret the heady temper, the rancor, and the violence shown on either side because the parties were so admira-bly qualified for testing their issues by disputation and the tongue. Richard Baxter foiled the weapon of one very persistent Quaker, who had been arguing that all men were illumined by the inner light, by asking the question, "If all have it, why may not I have it?"
What would have been the final working out of the pitched conflict between

Quaker contumacy and Puritan persist-ency had they been left to the action of their own energies, without the inter-vention of an external mediating agency, it would hardly have been difficult for any but the most resolute and stern of the magistrates to have forecast. The Quakers would have conquered by simple endurance. Their weapons were what in the immediate future were to be But one of the sufferers having gone to England and gained access to Charles II., brought back from the monarch a peremptory command that the death-penalty against the Quakers should be no more inflicted, and that those who were under judgment or in prison should be sent to England for trial.

The King's interference with the stern rule of the Puritan commonwealth also involved the immediate removal of the restriction of the franchise to church members, and its extension to all citizens who were in other respects entitled to it. The court, however, managed to evade the concession here required of them by substituting conditions which substantially retained the rigid method of securing the ballot. On this point—the vital and all-essential security of their original polity—they were soon compelled to yield, because the royal mandate was reinforced by so strong a party of the uncovenanted non-voters within the colony insisting upon their

Not till the provincial was substituted for the colonial charter was the spell of the Puritan domination effectually broken; and then the Puritan common-wealth was prostrated. The survival from it in tradition, in influence, in the sway of manifold habits and customs, and in the lessons of childhood retaining their power over those who lived to advanced age, perpetuated very much of its austere and characteristic qualities in this community. Nor even in these days, among the mixed and diversified elements of our population, and all the relaxing and liberalizing results of the most radical social change, is the fire in the ashes of Puritanism wholly extin-guished.—George E. Ellis.

THE FIRST PLANO.

In 1857—it may have been five years earlier or later, this is not history for the public school—there was a little camp about ten miles from Pioche, occupied by upwards or about 300 miners, every one of whom packed up his prospecting implements and left for more inviting fields any time before sunset. When the day was over the men did not rest from their labors, like the honest New England agriculturist, but sang, danced, gambled, and shot each other, as the mood seized them.

t One evening a report spread along the main street (which was the only street) that three men had been killed at Silver Reef, and that the bodies were coming Presently a lumbering old conveyance labored up the hill, drawn by a couple of horses, well wornout with their pull. The cart contained a good-sized box, and no sooner did its outline become visible through the glimmer of a stray light here and there, than it began to affect the idlers. Death always enforces respect, and even though no one had caught sight of the remains, the crowd gradually became subdued, and when the horses came to a stand-still, the cart was immediately surrounded. The driver, however, was not in the least im-pressed with the solemnity of his commission.

"All there?" asked one. "Havn't examined. Guess so." The driver filled his pipe and lit it as he continued: "Wish the bones and the load had gone over the grade."

A man who had been looking on stepped up to the man at once. "I don't know whom you have in that box, but if they happen to be any friends of mine I'll lay you alongside."

"We can mighty soon see," said the teamster, coolly. "Just bust the lid off, and if they happen to be the men you want, I'm here.

The two looked at each other for a moment, and the crowd gathered a little closer, anticipating trouble.

"I believe that dead men are entitled to good treatment, and when you talk about hoping to see corpses go over a bank, all I have to say is, that it will be better for you if the late lamented ain't my friends."

"We'll open the box. I don't take back what I've said, and if my language don't suit your ways of thinking, I guess

With these words the teamster began to pry up the lid. He got the board off, and then pulled out some old rags. A strip of something dark, like rosewood, presented itself.

"Eastern coffins, by thunder!" said several, and the crowd looked quite astonished.

Some more boards flew up, and the man who was ready to defend his friends' memory shifted his weapon a little. The cool manner of the teamster had so irritated him that he made up his mind to pull his weapon at the first sight of the dead, even if the deceased was his worst and oldest enemy. Presently the whole of the box cover was off, and the teamster, clearing away the packing, revealed to the astonished group the top of something which puzzled all alike.

"Boys," said he, "pianner."

A general shout of laughter went up, and the man who had been so anxious to enforce respect for the dead, muttered something about feeling dry, and the keeper of the nearest bar was several ounces better off by the time the boys had given the joke all the attention it called for.

Had a half dozen dead men been in the box their presence in the camp could not have occasioned half the excitement that the arrival of that lonely piano caused. By the next morning it was known that the instrument was to Tom Goskin, the leading gambler in the place. It took nearly a week to get this wonder on its legs, and the owner was the proudest individual in the State. It rose gradually from a recumbent to an upright position, amid a confusion of tongues after the manner of the Tower

Of course everybody knew just how such an instrument should be put up. One knew where the "off hind leg" should go, and another was posted on the "front piece."

Scores of men came to the place every day to assist. "I'll put the bones in good order."

"If you want the wire tuned. I'm the boy."
"I've got music to feed it for a

Another brought a pair of blankets for a cover, and all took the livliest interest in it. It was at last in a condition for

"It's been showin' it's teeth all the week. We'd like to have it spit out some-

Alas! there wasn't a man to be found who could play upon the instrument. Goskin began to realize that he had a losing speculation on his hands. He had a fiddler and a Mexican who thrummed upon a guitar. A pianist would have made his orchestra complete.

One day a three card monte player told a friend confidentially that he could "knock any amount of music out of a piano, if he only had it alone for a few hours to get his hand in." The report spread over the camp, but on being questioned he vowed that he didn't know a note of music. It was noted, however, as a suspicious circumstance, that he often hung about the instrument, and looked upon it longingly, like a hungry man gloating over a beefsteak in a restaurant window. There was no doubt that this man had music in his soul, perhaps in his fingers' ends, but did not dare to make a trial of his strength after the rules of harmony had suffered so many years of neglect. So the fiddler kept on with his jigs, and the greasy Mexican pawed his discordant guitar, but no man had the nerve to touch that piano. There were doubtless scores of men in the camp who would have given ten ounces of gold dust to have been half an hour alone with it, but every man's nerve shrank from the 13 which the crowd would over up. aim should his first attempt wore vilure. It got to be genera anderstand that the hand i the keys must me slouch its work.

It was Christmas eve, and Goskie, secording to his custom, had decorated his gambling house with sprigs of mountain cedar, and a shrub whose crimson berries did not seem a bad imitation of English holly. The piano was covered with evergreens, and all that was wanting to completely fill the cup of Goskin's contentment was a man to play that

"Christmas night and no piano pound-

Getting a piece of paper he scrawled the words:

£20 Reward To a Compitant Pianer Player.

So the merrymaking went on; the hilarity grew apace. Men danced and sang to the music of the squeaky fiddle and worn out guitar, as the jolly crowd within tried to drown the howling of the storm without. Suddenly they became aware of the presence of a white-hafred man crouching near the fire-place. His garments, such as were left, were wet with melting snow, and he had a halfstarved, half-crazed expression. He held his thin, trembling hands toward the fire, and the light of the blazing wood made them almost transparent.

He looked about him once in a while, as if in search of something, and his presence cast such a chill over the place that gradually the sound of revelry was hushed, and it seemed that this waif of the storm had brought in with it all the gloom and coldness of the warring elements. Goskin, mixing up a cup of egg-nog, advanced and remarked cheer-

"Here, stranger, brace up! This is the real stuff."

The man drained the cup, smacked his lips and seemed more at home. "Been prospecting, eh? Out in the mountains—caught in the storm? Lively night, this!" "Pretty bad," said the man.

"Must feel pretty dry?"
The man looked at his streaming clothes and laughed, as if Goskin's remark was a sarcasm.

"How long out?" "Four days."

"Hungry?" The man rose up and walking to the lunch counter, fell to work on roast beef, devouring it like any wild animal would have done. As meat and drink and warmth began to permeate the stranger, he seemed to expand and lighten up. His features lost their pallor, and he grew more and more content with the idea that he was not in the grave. As he underwent these changes the people around him got merrier and happier, and threw off the temporary feeling of de-pression which he had laid upon them.

Presently his eye fell upon the piano. "Where's the player?" he asked.
"Never had any," said Goskin, blushing at the confession. "I used to play when I was young." Goskin almost fainted at the admis-

"Stranger, do tackle it and give us a tune. Nary man in this camp ever had the nerve to rastle with that music box." His pulse beat faster, for he feared that the man would refuse.

"I'll do the best I can," he said. There was no steel, but seizing a candle box, he drew it up and seated him-self before the instrument. It only required a few seconds for a hush to come "That old coon is going to give the thing a rattle." The sight of a man at the plane was something so unusual that even the faro dealer who was about to take in a $50 bet on the tray, paused, and did not reach for the money. Men stopped drinking with the glasses at their lips. Conversation appeared to have been struck with a sort of paralysis and cards were no longer shuffled. The old man brushed back his long, white locks, looked up to the ceiling, of reverie passed his fingers over the keys. He touched but a single note, yet the sound thrilled the room. It was the key to his improvisations, and as he key to his improvisations, and as he purifier) and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the wove his chords together the music laid great skin cures.) its spell upon every ear and heart. He CUTICURA felt his way along the keys like a man treading uncertain paths, but he gained confidence in his work like a master. The instrument was not in exact tune. but the ears of his audience, through long disuse, did not detect anything wrong. They heard a succession of grand chords, a suggestion of paradise, melodies here and there, and it was enough. "See him counter with his left!" said the old rough, enraptured.

"He calls the turn every time on the upper end of the board," responded a man with a stack of chips in his hand.

The player wandered off into the old ballads he had heard at home. All the sad, and melancholy, and touching songs that came up like dreams of childhood, this unknown player drewfrom the keys. His hands kneaded their hearts like dough, and squeezed out the tears as from a wet sponge. As the strains flowed one upon the other, they saw their home of long ago reared again; they were playing once more where the apple blossoms sank through the soft air to join the violets on the green turf of the old New England States; they saw the glories of the Wisconsin maples and the haze of the Indian summer blending their hues together; they saw the heather of the Scottish hills, the white cliffs of Briton, and heard the sullen roar of the sea as it beat upon their gemories vaguely.

Then came all the old Christmas carols that they had sung in church thirty years before; the subtle music that brings up the glimmer of wax-tapers. the solemn shrines, the evergreens, holly, mistletoe, and the surpliced choirs. Then the remorseless performer planted his final stab in every heart with "Home, Sweet Home."

When the player ceased, the crowd slunk away from him. There was no more revelry and merriment left in his audience. Each man wanted to sneak off to his cabin and write the old folks a letter. The day was breaking as the last man left the place, and the player, laying his head down on the piano, fell

"I say, pard," said Goskin, "Don't von want a little rest?" "I feel tired," the old man said. "Perhaps you'll let me rest here for the matter of a day or so. He walked behind the bar, where some old blankets were laying, and stretched himself upon them. "I feel pretty sick. I guess I won't last long. I've got a brother down in the ravine his name's Driscoll. He don't know I'm here. Cen you get him before morning? I'd lil to see his face once more before I die.

Goskin started up at the mention of the name. He knew Driscoll well. "He your brother? I'll have him here

There was no one there!

"Gone!" cried Driscoll, wildly, "Gone!" echoed Goskin, pulling out his cash-drawer. "Ten thousand dollars in the sack, and the Lord knows how much loose change in the drawer!" The next day the boys got out, followed the horses tracks through the snow and lost them in the trail leading toward Pioche. There was a man missing from the camp. It was the three card monte man, who used to deny point blank that he could play the scale. One day they found a wig of white hair, and called to mind when the stranger had pushed those locks back when he looked toward the ceiling for inspiration, the night of December 24, 1857.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Small Comfort.

When you are continually coughing night and day, annoying everybody around you, and hoping it will go away of its own accord, you are running a dangerous risk-better use Dr. Thomas' ECLECTRIC OIL, an unfailing remedy in all such cases.

Søldiers Under Fire.

Whenever you can find a soldier who, under fire, aims low and shoots to make every bullet wound or kill, you will find fifty who are nervously throwing away ammunition, seeming to reason that the reports of their muskets will check or drive the enemy. And yet this nervous-ness need not be wondered at, for they are playing a game of life and death.

At Malvern Hill, seventeen soldiers belonging to an Ohio regiment took cover in a dry ditch, which answered admirably for a rifle-pit. A Georgia regiment charged this little band three times, and were three times driven back. The fire was low and rapid, and the loss in front of their guns was more than 100 killed in ten minutes. Regiments have been engaged for an hour without losing over half that number. The fire of these seventeen was so continuous that McClellan forwarded a brigade to their support, believing that an entire regiment had been cut off.

A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and soon abserbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dinness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc., etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has shood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untole misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put upin neat boxes, of three sizes. No. 1, (enough to last a month.) $3; No. 2, (sufficient to effect a pemanent cure, unless in severe cases.) $5; No. 2, (dasting over three months, will stop emissions and restore vigor in the worst cases.) $7. A very pleasing event, to those immediately interested at least, occurred at Footville, on Wednesday evening, December 28, it being the marriage of Mr. Frank T. Bleasdale, cf Racine, to Miss Eva L., one of the eldest daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Finley Silverthorn. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, by the Rev. Mr. Weils, of the Christian church, Miss Ella twin sister of the bride, and Miss Aggie, initiatory steps were taken toward form- sister of the groom, acting as bridesing a society for the study of authors, maids, and Dr. Ward Lacy and Mr. A. The White Mountains. The Indians, it is known, inhabited these mountains long before the settlement of any portion of New England by whites. But their villages were chiefly situated upon the skirts, where the hunting and fishing were good, and the ground favorable to their primitive mode of cultivating it. His infallible eye for the best sites is suffciently evident, since we find the Indian's uncouth wigwam invariably succeeded by the most important settlements of the English. Otherwise, the mountains were for the American Indian, as for the natural man in all ages, a sealed book. He regarded them not only as an image, but as the actual dwelling-place of Omnipo-tence. His dreaded Manitou, whose voice was the thunder, whose anger the lightning, and on whose face no mortal could look and live, was the counterpart of the terrible Thor, the Icelandic god, throned in a palace of ice, among frozen and inaccessible peaks. So far, then, as he was concerned, the mountain remained inviolate, inviolable, as a kind of hell filled with the despairing shricks of those who, in an evil heur, transgressed the limits sacred to immortals. The first mention I have met with of the Indian name for these mountains is in the narrative of Capt. John Gyles, printed in Boston in 1736, saying that "the White Hills, called the Teddon [Katahdin], at the head of Penobscot river are, by the Indians, said to be much higher than those called Agiockochook, above Saco." The probable signification of this Indian word is, according to the best living authority, "the mountains on that side," or "over yonder," to distinguish them from the mountains of the Penobscot. It is not precisely known when or how these granite peaks first took the name of White mountains. We find them so designated in 1672 by Josselyn, who himself performed the feat of ascending the highest summit, of which a brief record is found in his "New England's Rarities." One cannot help saying of Rarities." One cannot help saying of this book that either the author was a Hair Cloth & Tooth Brushes, liar of the first magnitude, or el have to regret the degeneracy of nature, exhausted by her long travail; for this writer gravely tells us of frogs that were as big as a child a year old, and of poisonous serpents which the Indians caught with their bare hands, and ate alive with great gusto. These are rarities indeed! The name is traced, not, as in the case of Mont Blanc, to the fact that their peaks are covered with perpetual snows, for this is true of only half the year, but from the circumstance that the bare granite of which the highest are com-posed transmits a white light when ob-served from a distance. Mariners approaching from the open sea descried what seemed a cloud-bank rising from the landward horizon when twenty leagues from the nearest coast, and before any other land was visible. - Harper's Magazine.

BRIEFLETS -The ice men are watching and wait-

-"Widow Bedott" is to receive her friends at the Opera house Saturday

preaching at the Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock this evening. -The young ideas begin to shoot again next Monday morning, the public

-There will be religious services and schools opening a new term then. -Prof. Severance's dancing school meets this evening, for the last lesson of the term. He will open another term, however, at once. -Mrs. John Watson last evening entertained a few of her friends, who were thus given a happy chance to meet Miss Nichols, of Spaulding, England. __The Guards have arranged for the first of their social hops to be held next Friday evening at their armory. Gallery free. Dancing tickets fifty cents.

-The German Lutheran church has offered $50 reward for the recovery of the body of William Henning, who fell from the railway bridge and was drowned, one day last week.

-Beloit's cry for protection has been heard and the city fathers of that place have added three more policemen, making five in all. Janesville still manages to get along with a City Marshal and two night watchmen.

-- In the Municipal court to-day George Chatfield was on trial for burglarizing Rowe's tobacco warehouse. District Attorney Sale appeared for the the Opera house. The New York Times State and Attorneys A. Hyatt Smith and T. J. Emmons for the defense. The jury disagreed.

-It is very befitting that the week of prayer, or prayer for the weak, should follow the holiday season. Those who made fresh "swear-offs" need prayer, and some of those who celebrated the holidays need a little of it too.

-Fred Fields, the conductor who was so badly injured Monday morning, died yesterday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock, at the Spence house, where he has been since the accident. His remains were taken to Edgerton to-day for inter-

-Janesville friends of Mr. Charles Wingate are receiving cards announcing his marriage to Miss Ida Bisbee, of Minneapolis, last Monday evening. Many congratulations and well-wishes will go forth from this city to the newly wedded

-A very enjoyable German was participated in by about sixteen couples at Apollo hall last evening. The favors were very pretty, the music, furnished by Anderson's band, was excellent, and the company was a happy one, and the occasion thoroughly enjoyable in all respects.

-E. T. Foote announces in another column that he has special advantages In a garden in Starkborough, New for providing satisfactory custom work to the patrons of his clothing establishment. He has secured the services of a skillful cutter from Boston, and has everything in the best possible condition for doing the best of work. -At noon to-day Mr. Samuel Cleland, of the town of Center, fell from the top of a load of tobacco, which he was unloading at a warehouse near the depot. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to Mr. Gowdy's home, and Dr. Palmer called. Aside from the shock it was found that Mr. Cleland had suffered a dislocation of the

-It will surprise and shock this community to learn that Mrs. Ira Dexter is dead. Yesterday she seemed in usual health, and last evening after chatting with friends, retired to rest as usual, but it proved to be the long and mysterious rest of death, she being suddenly attacked by heart disease, as the result of which she breathed her last about 5 o'clock this morning. Her husband is away from home, his business causing him to travel most of the time. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cook, were with her and friends were hurriedly called in, and did all in their power to save her, but she was soon beyond the reach of help. -Galbraith Bros., yesterday sold their famous stallion "Glencoe," at a fabulous price, and also their one year old mare, "The Lady of the Lake," at a fancy price, both being sold to well-known horsemen in Marshall county, Ill., whither they were shipped last evening. Glencoe captured the first prize at the Chicago and Iowa fairs. He is coming five years old, and weighs about 2,000 pounds. The yearling mare weighs 1,320 pounds. The farmers of Rock county will be somewhat disappointed at having "Glencoe" go elsewhere, but the Galbraith brothers expect to be able by spring to supply them with something equally satisfactory. We understand that they also intend to present two elegant medals at the next Rock county fair, for the best foals got by their horses last season. They still have quite a number of really good horses for sale.

A pure, wholesome distillation of witch hazel, American pine, Canada fir, marigold, clover blossoms, etc., fragrant with the healing essences of palsam and the exeruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, Such is Sanford's Radical Cure for Ca-

Death to rats, mice, roaches and ants: Parsons' Exterminator. Barns, granaries, and households cleared in a single night. No fear of bad smells. Best and cheapest vermin killer in the world. Sold everywhere.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

While he has his hand in, M. C. Smith has decided to put the knife to all merchandise in which he is interested, making a general clearing up all around. Smith & Son now offer their entire stock at a great sacrifice. It is a comparatively easy matter for them to make a reduction, there being no re-marking to do. Their prices are in plain figures, from which, commencing to-morrow, they offer a discount of 20 per cent, on all winter goods, and 15 per cent. on balance of stock. They claim this will average everything at less than cost; but as they are overstocked on no particular line of goods, consider it the most just and equitable method of making the sale When neonle can, at this season of the year, have their pick at wholesale cost, from such a stock of dry goods as Smith & Bostwick carry, and the immense assortment of clothing, &c. at Smith & Son's, it will pay them to come a long distance to trade, and there is no excuse for anyone in this part of the country being poorly clad.

Frightful Misery. Mr. Wm. Pomeroy, Bangor, Me. writes: 'I have for a long time suffered from continual constipation, making my life a misery, and causing headache and frightful cramps. Mr. Thomason (who has been lately visiting in Buffalo), induced me to try the Spring Blossom. It has perfectly cured me." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

BUDGET OF FUN. Next Saturday evening Haverly's Widow Bedott" company, introducing the popular comedian, Charles B. Bishop, as the inimitable widow, will appear at "The Widow Bedott was brought out in an attractive fashion at Haverly's Fourteenth Street Theatre last Monday night. The play as is generally known, is based upon the once-famous "Widow Bedott Papers." In its dramatization, all of the fun of the Papers has been preserved, and the result is a budget of colloquial oddities equal to anything in the way of merriment now on the stage. The fun is enveloped principally, from the widow's peculiarities, and the unctnously developed self-esteem of Elder Sniftles. Mr. Bishop fills the role effectively, and brings down the house continuously. Mr. Sol Smith, who personates the meek and sleek Elder Shadrach Sniffles, is a good artist, and makes the most of his lines

I Have A Word to Say!

Thanking my friends, and all others, for their liberal patronage in the past, I would say that I have never been as well situated to give every one as good fitting custom made garments as at the present time. A garment cutartistically, trimmed in good taste, and made up by superior workmen, cannot fail to please any one. I have been successful in engaging the services of F. Albert Smith, direct from Boston, to fill the required position of cutting and superintending the making of all the custom work. We will not allow any garments to go out from this time unless entirely satisfactory both in fit and workmanship. I have the best and most skillful workmen, and they are stayers, too, regardless of large offers They work for me for the simple reason that I pay them well for doing good work, and do by them as I would have them do by me.

For the month of January we shall give special reduction on all of our custom made garments. Come and see us, and we will make it to your advantage.
